AKA At Their Best

Paule Lee sits among pillows in display as a part of AICA week.

As the A K A week came to an end Saturday February 16, 1973, they sponsored a Funkadelic show which drew a crowd of fifteen hundred people; with their opinions of the show being "It was really together". Although the show was late getting underway, it really entertained its audience.

Other activities sponsored by the A K A Sorority were:

- Sunday: Serenade at WRC
- Monday: Rush Party and Presentation of Court
- Tuesday: Gospel Extravaganza
- Thursday: Fashion Show and Talent Show
- Friday: Dance at the Labor Temple
- Saturday: Funkadelic Show

Political Science Department Imperative

By Vernon G. Bush

Desperately needed at Tennessee State University is a separate Political Science Department. The study is presently housed in the Department of History, Political Science, and Geography. This curricula is not adequately facilitated or staffed, and is not under its present set up. Courses are presently being offered infrequently, or being phased out.

In a related scope, a law school has been projected. Indeed, this would mean much to our campus and to many Blacks who aspire to a study of law. I am confident that we all acknowledge the progress contemplated in the implementation of such a proposal. I must, however, strongly advocate the amplification of a broad pre-law training-through Political Science. Such a program would not only enable a better assurance of Tennessee State University graduates being admitted to law schools, but would also enable a broad preparatory training for aspirants in political affairs.

We have witnessed mass political participation by Blacks at the national, as well as the local level. This was evidenced in the 1972 national party conventions! It was courageously manifested in Congresswoman Chisholm's bid for the Presidency. It was successfully realized in Attorney Brook's bid for the United States Senate. And, it was conspicuously projected in successful bids to the House by such men as Representatives Boggs and Mitchell. On the local level, Blacks have been elected as mayors, as state legislators, and as civic and organizational leaders. More participation is imminent. Consequently, more training is imperative.

Teaching in Political Science leads to training for civil service jobs. Civil service jobs are open to qualified Blacks.

Finally, a broader staffed, better facilitated, more developed Political Science Department would attract more non-Black students. The institution is for the students. Let's give them what they need—an established Political Science Department.

report that the freshman class of 69 students represent the largest group to date.

The Honors Program is proud to acknowledge the addition of six new persons to the Honors Faculty.

They are:

1. Dr. Sadie Gasaway, Professor and Head of the Department of Physics and Mathematics, who teaches the newly added Mathematics 181.
2. Mrs. Joan Elliott, Associate Professor of German, who will teach one section of Sophomore Colloquium.
3. Mr. Gilbert Senter, Associate Professor of chemistry, who now teaches the Honors Chemistry course designed for Honor students and chemistry majors only.

4. Mr. Peter Cook from Austin-Peay State University an exchange teacher with Mr. Donald Barrett of Tennessee State University. Mr. Cook is now teaching Honors Music Appreciation.

5. Mrs. Mary F. Carter, Associate Professor of English, teaches two sections of Honors Freshman English.

6. Dr. Alberta Barrett, Professor of English, teaches a section of Honors Freshman English.

The Honors Program is offering more classes this Winter Quarter, although nothing entirely new has been added. The Honors Program is also planning their Annual Honors Banquet for March 2, 1973.

Home Economic Department Offers Clothing Skill Techniques

By Jean Hopper

Department of Home Economics specialization in Clothing and Textiles verses a student on the construction of a garment. This can be helpful to an individual interested in becoming a fashion buyer.

To know good quality, one must know how to put a good quality garment together. Courses in textiles are being offered in order to prepare the student for determining good quality fibers and fabrics. This builds good background for a person who may wish to take a job with textiles and clothing industries.

Interior design, art, and related art courses are offered for the purpose of the student to gain the appreciation of color, style-line and taste.

This department does not require courses in Salesmanship and Marketing. It is felt that this is definitely a fault. If these courses were required, the student would gain knowledge on how and what goes on in the Merchandising world before being faced with it.

Is It Really?

By Clyde King

So the war in Viet Nam is supposed to be over, and the United States is supposed to have come out of the war with honor. Did the United States really come out of Viet Nam with honor? Take alook at the problem and situation our armed forces faced.

The Marines were banned from ground combat because of the pressure the President wasunder from other Americans. The Navy was hit with many a racial problem;
surely a department could not function with internal problems such as those the Navy was having. Air Force pilots were revolting against going up in those B52 Bombers; in other,
those "killers."

Along with those problems,
the United States government had to do something to get out of Viet Nam before there was a 'gentle uprising' in the nation.

After all the POW's return home, it is assumed that Americans will say, "Finally it'sover." yes, but over sith what and how? Over for the United States' being ashamed and over because of the ignorance of the American People.

Finally, thnk about this editorial when Mr. Nixon begins to appropriate money for the reconstruction of what we Americans had a purpose for destroying. And doh't fool yourselves thinking the United States came out of Viet Nam with honor. We came in great disgrace.

Black Officers In Our Army

By Glenda Baskin

Three gentlemen from the United State's Army were interviewed. Major Greene, Captain Reed, and Captain Coar were representatives from the Association of Modern Minority Officers, Inc. Their actual purpose is to aid black colleges and univesities in becoming aware that there are black officers in the Military Service who are tuntioning together.
They stated that there is a need for more black officers with a college education.

Mutual proplems brought the organization together in January of 1972, and since that time they have grown considerably. Percentage wise, there is now a majority of blacks. Some of their various functions include a Fashion-Show dinner with $1,500
proceeds going to the Sicle-Cell Anemia Drive in Columbus, Georgia. Also a contribution was made to the Urban League in Columbus which aided in commencement of another chapter of the Urban League in Savannah, Georgia.

Memo To A Corpse

By Jimmy Johnson

How does it feel to be dead?
I wish that one of TSU'S 4,500 living corpses, affectionately referred to as the student body, would answer this. But, then again, this would be a sign of life and never let it be said that this student body ever showed signs of living.

Some may feel that this is a harsh thing to say about any fellow student, but let's face facts: because of your lack of interest, your apathy, your silence, you have let yourself be allied with the grave and that which is dead.

Now from your grave you still refuse to face facts and live up to reality. Yet here are some facts that on the surface we know to be true. First the student body of TSU has allowed themselves to become mere puppets and tools of the administration, Greek organizations and the so-called student leaders. Secondly, you play the game with TSU student leaders and administrators, under quasi-beliefs that it does not affect you. Finally, you are ground up, put through redtape beaucracy, and told where to go and all you say is, "I want to get down."

As usual, I am an individual who feels that he sees the problem. But, one individual can only try. It takes us all to bring about change. But then I really don't believe in reincarnation, so I don't feel that this article will move any of the apathetic deadbeats of this campus to act. For action causes change, and to try to change would mean that you are alive.

To Be Or Not To Be—

By Alonzo Ward
Senior Class President

This is in response to an article in the first issue of the METER entitled "Gestapo Justice At TSU." In that article, charges were made that are totally unsubstantiated.

First of all, it was charged that the Student Judicial Council has ceased to exist. If not hearing cases is what is meant by this charge, then I say "well and good." It seems to me that this would make the Council happy. Would you lead the student body to believe that the Judicial Council is looking forward to administering disciplinary action? It is the hope of many of us, your fellow students, that this is not the case.

As a point of clarification, allow me to cite a few things found in the Student Handbook. The handbook clearly states on Page seven that the Student Judicial Council will handle offenses requiring discipline. It also states on that same page that the student-Faculty Advisory Committee will handle offenses requiring severe discipline. On page nine of the handbook it lists in detail the offenses classified under the above headings.

The Student Judiciary Council shall handle cases involving:

- Boisterousness on or off campus
- Abuse of property
- Disrespect for Authority
- Use of profanity
- Vulgarity in any form
- Loitering on campus
- Any act militating against the maintenance of clean, attractive and healthful conditions of facilities, buildings and grounds.
- Any other infractions of Appologies

I would like to make a personal apology to the author of the Electric Workshop article run in the last issue of the METER. Credit for the writing was mistakenly given to someone else. My apologies.

standards of conduct that require disciplinary action.

—Dishonesty
The Student-Faculty Advisory Committee shall handle cases involving:

- Failure to observe sign-out regulations
- Illegal entry of a building
- Prowling
- Gross immorality
- Unauthorized possession of master keys
- Theft
- Possession of, use, or involvement in the handling or sale of narcotic and alcoholic beverages.
- Possessing, concealing or selling stolen property
- Fighting
- Destruction of property
- Academic dishonesty and cheating
- Aggravated assault
- Embezzlement and/or forgery, larceny, burglary, and robbery.

The second charge was that student committee members were appointed and not elected. This is, indeed, to say the least, a fraudulent accusation. The student members were selected by the President of the Student Government Association and voted on by members, and one of the alternates elected to the committee is elected members of the SGA.

My suggestion to the anonymous author of that article is for him or her to go to the SGA and the Vice-President for Student Affairs and lobby for changes or improvements to the Student Handbook. However, I might add that it would not be fair to the students to allow the Judicial Council to function in all cases of student affairs, regardless of the nature of the dilemma or offense. Clearly one can see the conflicts of interest that could arise in the unlikely event that this was the case.

Furthermore, the role of the Student-Faculty Advisory Committee is not to "roll every student from the hill." Moreover, there have been cases where the Committee guaranteed that justice be served in every case.

Consequently, if 'justice' is what the author of "Gestapo Justice at T.S.U.," is seeking, he should constructively go about his task through proper channels, because he certainly will not gain it with false charges and name-calling, if indeed justice is not being served in the first place.

"Niggers Ought To Change"

Jerome Jamerson

For the past four years this writer has frequently looked at the disgusting situation here on the now deceased campus of TSU.

The death that took place begun, seemingly, about five years ago and has now filtered down from Administration, Faculty, Staff, and now it finally has overcome the Students. Perhaps this death was destined for us in this day and time of fast change in which many who's job it is to run this "peculiar institution", could not cope. The students were the last to be fall this tragic death possibly because they had more to lose—and no one seemed to care here or downtown. Lack of school spirit is a definite sign of gross irresponsibility on the part of the Administrators and student body. Recently, certain organizations attempted supposedly, to change this trend by sitting together in one section of the gym at one of the recent basketball games, to inspire school spirit. This action was to be a surprise to the student body, luckily work leaked out ahead of time so that the other 4,200 students of T.S.U. were not "shocked" without warning, which unfortunately didn't occur. This writer wonders why this group of students choose to remove themselves from the rest of the student body—aren't they to student of T.S.U.?

The attitudes displayed by students, student organizers, and so called student leaders, on this campus is pathetic. One basic problem is that (with all do respect to our rural friends) over 60 percent of the students here come from the state of Tennessee which with the exception of its four major cities, is basically rural and therefore the products of these areas are conservative thoughts. We know that in all cases we find exceptions, but as a whole these students can only operate as to their background and experiences in these areas, which in most cases are limited.

Consequently, students are elected and in some cases placed in the position of student leaders, and they have no insight whatsoever in dealing with organizations much less leadership ability. This then leads to the ability of some administrators to overwhelm the more "gullible" quasi leaders, by extending favors, therefore getting the things the administration want passed and too, also student leaders endorsement, for the record. Is this not the same as the white man that many of you advocate that you hate?

Speaking on the subject of the rejection of whits, by many of our students and so many students advocate daily, it strikes this writer with much curiosity why the persons who want Black History courses, are not enrolled in the ones we presently have, thus giving the administration the need to imitate others. In the area of history alone we have 385-386 and 387-vital topics dealing with the mid-East and African history, 491-492 and 493-Negro in American History, 451-452 and 45-3, Latin American History, 57-1572 and 573-World civilizations and, 381-382 Civil War and Reconstruction, all of which deals with the Black man and or other races of color, excluding the caucasian.

Students by now should be tired of hours and hours of rhetoric and no action. Students should seriously look at themselves as an individual—minus, the students leadership status, minus group affiliation and groups colors, and set some pertinent goals, then maybe the administration will wake up to the years 1973 as the year of judgement for Tennessee State. For Gabriel (University of Tennessee) is soon to sound his trumpet and in this case there's no purgatory. Then what??? "Niggers Ought to Change and Display Blackness if they are going to continue to profess to be—Black?"

Tigersharks Bring Victory To TSU

By Vernon Bush

TSU's swim team was victorious Saturday. The Tigersharks spashed ahead of Union, defeating them by a score of 61 to 44. The Kentuckyians proved little match in the water against the swimming agility of the Tigersharks.

Anthony Stamps takes the spotlight in swim match leadership. He presently is the holder of three school records. Being in his junior year, Stamps will be around next season to continue his efforts in pushing the Tigersharks ahead.

Coach James Bass is anticipating a rewarding season in the upcoming year. His team presently includes only one senior.

The Tigersharks will compete against Vrea of Kentucky this Saturday. TSU's season record presently is four wins and seven losses. Diving in home waters Satuday, the Tigersharks are sharpened for victory.

graduate assistant football coach.

One of Robinson's distinctions was making the varsity team during his freshman year at TSU. Perhaps it seems a small fet, but he made it along side the great vets that have made recent basketball history for the Hardwood Tigers. Those vets were Ted (Hound) McClain, Lloyd Neal and Claude Grant. Having played alongside such distinguished veterans, he has mattered the skills necessary to stay on top. With these skills, robinson has gone to the nets and earned a fame of his own.

Of 433 field goal attempts, Robinson has completed 223, with an average of .516. He has completed 111 of 166 free throws, averaging .669. Of 361 rebounds, he has an average of 17 per game, over 21 game played. His total points are 557, averaging 26.5 per game over 21 games played.

Scream Out Loud: It May Help

A TRG Production

"Why am I having so much trouble just trying to live a normal life. You know, at times, I feel as if I could just throw down my books and just walk away. I'm so disgusted I don't know what to do."

If you feel this way at times then congratulations, we have something in common. As a matter of opinion based on some fairly reliable philosophy, I would say everyone falls victim to frustration, depression, and feelings of disgust. Life offers this seesaw of ups and downs as a guarantee and a promise. You, however may feel you are getting more than your share of the downs. Most people, with any degree of concern, feel they are missing out or that life is passing them by as the expression goes.

What you must realize is that man progresses in darkness leaving the lit path behind him. Problems are unavoidable but can be taken with a less degree of personal strain. How? By attempting to find out the "why" behind it all.

First you must accept a few things...

(1) You must realize you are not the one of a kind of person you may feel you are. There are several people that, for the most part, have lived identical lives compared to yours. Horoscopes depend heavily on this for the making of their predictions.

(2) You have the same needs and drives; and everyone, for the most part, has the same weaknesses. Ask the average person the two most essential things between him or her and happiness, and the reply, most always, will be money and someone they can call their own in love.

(3) Your attitude toward criticism is important. Some people use criticism in overdoses. Do you? Your answer should have been yes, but most people like to think they can honestly say no.

Radiation causes damage, but in moderation it can be very helpful. Criticism, likewise. A young lady that I met in one of my classes impressed me with her insight on the problems of life in general. One could say she was obviously a sensitive woman. The friendship grew and was about a month old when another phase of her personality showed itself. From all indications she was trying to deflate my ego by criticism of everything she could conceive. My first question was, why the sudden change? I asked her if there was something troubling her that caused this critical streak to surface, or was it her desire to end our friendship. She replied she was unaware that she was being critical and stated that I was more critical than I realized. We sat and talked it over. The talk shed a lot of light on the subject. This convinced me that most times people are unaware of their slight faults, and a simple hint or statement applied with taste and consideration does wonders.

Of course the solution to any problem can only be derived when there is an admittance to the fact that a problem exists. To help you crystalize your thinking in the direction of adapting to or resisting life's most prevalent obstacle and that is conflict with others read further.

(1) In any unpleasant situation before it causes you to "fly off the handle" ask yourself, why? Why did that make me angry? If someone else had said or done this, would I be angry? You owe it to your own peace of mind to inquire as to the motive or reasoning behind a statement or action. (2) Don't let anyone insult you imply something without justifying it. Don't let loud voices scare you, or threats for that matter. If the person refuses to talk further let it "ride" for then, but later, maybe a day or more, ask again because there is a lot of damage being caused to you if you let these unlikely events accumulate.

(3) Remember one of the quickest ways to make an enemy is to suggest superiority or try to make him feel inferior.

(4) Remember exposure to criticism causes condemnation. Remember exposure to hostility causes fighting. Remember exposure to acceptance causes a love for self.

(5) Take note of every emotion in you and remember annoyance most frequently comes from half-answered questions. "We see in the works of geniuses our own rejected ideas," said Emerson. Speak up! Tell people the truth, but be sensible. Don't cry with them, because the sooner a problem is recognized, the sooner it can be dealt with. Remember, you find plenty of people who are with you in times of harmony, but let trouble show its face; "poof" they are gone. Likewise there are people who are with you to the end. Value those people, and give them priority in your life.

Compliments are always good for people. Get in the habit of using your talents for criticizing in reverse. Find the good assets in people and praise them for those things. Make certain that what you say is consistent. That is, what you say "to their face" should be what you say continuously. And believe what you say or don't say it. If someone asks for your criticism, you have been paid a compliment because they are saying, "I value your opinion."

Be sensible and avoid one word answers, like yes or no, and go into depth as to why your base answer is yes or no. I heard a person say once, "I don't like people that I have to handle with kid gloves." Some people actually feel there should be a limit where they become concerned. Most people that make such statements make you wonder if not kid gloves, then what? Boxing gloves? People can be hurt easily no matter what outward picture they show.

ETA KAPPA NU Inducts New Members

By Clyde King

Some members of the Tennessee State University Zeta Kappa Chapter was recently inducted into the honorary society-Eta Kappa Nu. Eta Kappa Nu is an international society for people in the field of Electrical Engineering.

Tennessee State students being inducted into this organization were Robert A. Alexander, Arhus L. Green, Michael G. Holmes, Richard E.

Jones, Mansfield Moore, Jorge Riveria, John O. Stroud, Charles Tulloss and Eustaces Hicks.

F. C. Weimer, President of the National Executive Council was present at the ceremony along with Paul Hudson, secretary of the National Executive Council. Two to TSU's alumni were present for the ceremony also. They were Theodore Bailey and Leroy Simpson, both employed with the Naval Testing Center in California. Faculty members hosting the ceremony were Guy W. Carlisle, S. S. Devgan, Andrew R. Johnson and Howard Wayt.

The science of moving things or how to get from here to there

That's right! GRUMMAN's real business is the science of moving things . . . men and machines in purposeful patterns within a great diversity of origins, destinations, tactical situations and logistical demands.

Speed is often, but not always the answer. Performance—in spite of many interfaces, is the thing!

At Grumman the technology extends from automotive (motor homes), maritime (hydrofoils and yachts) through advanced aircraft and lunar vehicles (Lunar Module) and space shuttles. It's hard to think of any single company in the world with a greater range of technology.

Engineering and Business Administration majors consequently have an unmatched spectrum for their talents in engineering, research, and business oriented areas.

Survey Shows Upturn In Job Market For This Year's Graduates

reprinted from Changing Times
The Kiplinger Magazine

A survey of companies and government agencies that expect to hire college graduates this year indicates that not sometime after graduation in June, is when seniors should be starting to look for jobs.

The survey, conducted by Changing Times magazine and released February 1, shows that despite an upturn in the job market for new graduates, the day when they could wait for corporate recruiters to come to them is still just a memory.

Replies from more than 100 companies indicate that seniors who do get started early should find good demand for their services in most major disciplines. Personnel officers responding to the survey described a wide range of jobs throughout the country.

72 of the organizations have or expect to have jobs for new engineering graduates. The specialties needed include aeronautical, chemical, civil, electrical geologic, industrial and mechanical engineering, among others.

59 want business and marketing majors for jobs in sales, management, planning and other areas.

48 have varied openings for accountants.

40 want science or mathematics majors for research, development and other technical positions.

30 have jobs for liberal arts majors in a variety of fields.

22 say they're looking for graduates with such miscellaneous specialties as computer programming, graphics arts, health, communications, advertising.

The closer an applicant's record and goals match the company's needs, the more likely he or she is to get the job.

Who is the ideal candidate? A composite picture drawn from the comments of personnel officers who participated in the survey shows a graduate with these shining characteristics:

Good grades. Companies still put a premium on them.

Plenty of extracurricular activities. Participation in campus affairs demonstrates an ability to get along with others.

Work experience. Ideally, this means summer or parttime work in a field related to the one you want to enter.

Willingness to relocate. Companies try to assign workers where they're needed most. An applicant who's willing to take a position somewhere away from home is likely to stay in the running longer than someone less flexible.

Clear job objective. Applicants who know what they want to do tend to make a better impression than those who don't.

The Changing Times survey is designed to help graduates get their job hunts off the ground and includes names and addresses of companies that indicated they have openings.

Graduating seniors tempted to put this off, better not. The early birds have their job-hunting campaigns rolling already.

Computer Center Offers Training Courses

1401 and 1620 Computer Centers are striving to reach every interested person in regard to its function, directly or indirectly.

Many students, as well as faculty and staff, have only a minute knowledge of what a computer is and what its functions may be. To familiarize all interested persons, the following training efforts have been and some are still offered to better acquaint persons with the functions of the computer.

The following credit courses for students are:

Mzth-294—Computer Programming (Spring Quarter)
CS-193—Computer Programming (Fall Quarter)
CS-291—Computer Programming (Winter Quarter)

Two Business-oriented programming courses, Autocoder and Cobol, are offered to students by the Department of Business. Classes in Key punch operations have been also conducted by the Business Department.

Non-credit courses for faculty and staff include:

1. Two non-credit short courses in Fortran programming have been offered to faculty and staff personnel.

2. A non-credit course in Basic Data Processing has been offered for the benefit of personnel in the university administrative offices. This course was not carried to completion because of poor class attendance.

3. A short course in Basic Autocoder Instructions was conducted by Norman J. Hunter, Assistant Director of the 1401 Computer Center. This program was offered to a group

The above programs may be reinstated if there are enough interested students or staff personnel. Anyone interested, please contact Norman J. Hunter or James S. Burton, in the 1401 Computer Center in the basement of the Administration Building.

Some Thoughts For Progress

By Vincent Knox

At the beginning of every new year, one cannot help wondering exactly what the future holds in store for us all. So it is no exception with this new year—1973. Many bizarre events and situations marked the past year, 1972. Reflecting, I, for one, seriously question the probability of improvement. The cancer that has been eating away at this entire society has begun to invade the fabric of our university. Many would blame this invasion on the administrative structure of our university. The administration has been accused of conducting itself in a pictatorial and despotic manner for years; and though these accusations may contain some truth, we would be deceiving ourselves if we overlooked the fact that student apathy and ignorance of "priority" problems have a great deal to do with our present situation.

Cafeteria Dilemma

By Clyde King

The University Cafeteria has many problems. These problems are not those of the workers alone; they are the student's problems also because the students are helping to create them.

Students are stealing silverware, trays, and other utensils from the Cafeteria, and carrying them to their rooms. On the other hand that staff is negligent in that one can very seldom get a clean tray to put his plate on.

After each meal, the Caf workers supposedly clean the Caf thoroughly, but if one enters the Caf forty-five minutes after dinner has started it is hard to believe that the place has been cleaned in a week.

It has been said that the students are provoking the Caf workers to have unpleasant attitudes. This may be true in a

TSU Good Guy

A man on campus who is due some recognition by the student body is Dean Crutchfield. This is the man who is responsible for each student getting into school.

There are several students on campus who will totally agree with the fact that Dean Crutchfield is one of the nicest people on the Administration. He is a man who has given students their last ounce of hope of finishing college.

At the beginning of the Winter Quarter a student was taking an over load of twenty seven hours; even after the drop-add period, Dean Crutchfield permitted the student to drop the excess courses. It's not to be said that Dean Crutchfield is the most powerful man on campus but he handles his part of the University very well; alone with Ms. Mary Harris, Ms. Queenester Garendor, Ms. Edna Elam and the other staff members of the Admission Office.

few cases, but in a great many cases, the workers are blessed. With unpleasant attitudes, and take all their personal frustrations out on the students' plates and mealbooks.

The most ridiculous thing in the Cafeteria is paying two cents for one slice of bread. Some Caf workers say that they are serving the most expensive bread, but they are making more than sixty-five cents a loaf. But in reality, bread being served is very wholely. Wouldn't Sunbeam be better?

(What is worse than cold uncooked broccoli with a cold cut platter with nothing but cheese for Sunday Dinner?) At the least, the food being served to the students can be heated if not given the proper care.

The most frustrating situation caused by students is that of trays being left on the table. TSU is about the only local College that has a big problem with students being too lazy to remove their trays from the table. What's wrong students? Is it that you are used to an unclean eating environment? Or is it that you just don't care?

To A True Valentine

By Donald C. Reid

My dearest and most loved Yvette,

Tonight my dreams are substituted with lachrymosity, due to the fact that tomorrow will be Saint Valentine's Day and I have not purchased the usual gift that most men will give their lucky ladies. Although this may be true, I want you to know and understand that you have something better and greater for this Valentine's Day...My impenetrable love.

Darling, I love you with more than merely my entire heart, body, and soul. God gave me the ability to love you with a love greater than that of common human capacity. Yet I am still searching for more ways to love a woman so deserving.

Attempting to emote a love such as this I have for you has deeply perplexed my mind, somewhere beyond...complexity...Utopia...and even the farthest element of time and space, my mind is defying the ultimate laws of nature; searching yet for the exact words to express the feelings of love I have now and that which is already growing into existence for tomorrow.

Oh my love, each time we meet a new force of strength is given birth to the epitome of love. If my love for you could be the source of light, the world would cease to know darkness.

The day you entered my heart my life span tripled. Each time my heart makes a beat, there are two additional beats. One for you and one for our perennial togetherness.

Yes, you have always had my love. To give you an idea of its intensity, is my Valentine's Day gift to you in 1973.

The only repayment I ask is not a fifth cents man-made card, nor any material gift. All I ask is the inexpensive, but price less continuation of your love.

Eternal Love,
Don
